

Daytime concert a gift to the community

GIVEAWAY

NGERINGA 24 is a totally new event for the Ngeringa Cultural Centre at Mt Barker, with five events curated by Genevieve Lacey spread over two days.

It starts with the free concert Daytide, featuring the Young Adelaide Voices, at 11 am on April 23.

“This is our gift to the community so we want to encourage everyone to attend and bring their families,” said Ngeringa Arts general manager Alison Beare.

“There is a picnic in the garden afterwards and people can buy a picnic box from us or bring their own.”

The Young Adelaide Voices, conducted by Christie Anderson, comprises young women aged 13 to 18 years.

“Their sound embodies youth and hope – within seconds,” said curator Genevieve Lacey.

“It helps you remember your most optimistic, joyful self. Alison and I emerged from their rehearsal refreshed and inspired.”

Following the free concert, Genevieve has arranged four events on the Saturday and a final concert on the Sunday, most with accompanying lunch or dinner options.

The concerts reflect the times of day – noon, dusk, owl-light, and daylight.

Musicians taking part are Genevieve Lacey – curator/recorder; Karina Schaupp – guitar; Umberto Clerici – cello; Marshall McGuire – harp; Phil Slater – trumpet; Chloe Hooper – writer; Sera Davies – filmmaker; Jim Atkins – sound design.

For further details and bookings, visit www.ngeringaarts.com.

The Courier has a double pass to give away for each of the three concerts on Saturday, April 23: Noon 2–3.15pm; Dusk 5–6.15pm, and Owl Light 8.45–10pm.

To enter, put your name and phone number on the back of an envelope addressed to:

Either ‘NOON’, ‘DUSK’ or ‘OWL LIGHT’.

PO Box 21, Mt Barker,
SA 5251

by Wednesday April 13. Winners will be notified by phone.

Young Adelaide Voices singers in full flight. RIGHT: Event curator Genevieve Lacey. Photo by Elizabeth O'Donnell.

“This is our gift to the community so we want to encourage everyone to attend and bring their families.”

